INITIATIVE

There used to be a giant heap of garbage near my home, piling up and rising every single day. It was utterly dissatisfying to see the plastic filled heap everyday, which deep down felt like a threatening warning for the actions of mankind right in front of my Eyes. Burning issues of rising climate change and the threatening problem of single use plastic, everything collectively gave me a strong push to think about a way to save our environment.

I discussed about the same with my brother Mr Atul Tripathi who was working with a consultancy as a design thinker, back then. My brother and I both quite different in our respective eyes, nevertheless had the values of empathy and social good in common. We together envisioned the concept of UNEAKO, where we decided to come up with unique alternatives for plastic to maintain the sustainability of our environment in the long term.

Uneako, now in full swing, is a movement to create environmental awareness. Through our range of eco-friendly, non-plastic products, we are trying to encourage people to adopt a sustainable lifestyle. All the products are manufactured from completely natural recyclable wastes and organic materials.

Gradually, with an innate desire to do something good for the marginalized communities of our society, we started extending support to the marginalized and neglected communities of our society like village women, disabled people, transgender, sex workers, jail inmates by employing their skill sets in the production and value addition of our products.

Uneako has emerged as a full package of holistic social welfare— impacting everyone around it in a positive, sustainable manner.

HAPPINESS

BRAND STORY

Pollution and poverty— these two were the biggest takeaways that impacted the younger founder Ankit. With his brother Atul, Ankit found the solution in Uneako— a brand which provides quality earth-friendly products produced by the marginalised section. These products are climate-positive, biodegradable and provide economic opportunities to those in need.

Each Uneako product has three key characteristics— quality, innovation and sustainability. The superior quality of every Uneako product ensures that people do not have to sacrifice comfort by buying green.

Uneako's constant innovation makes sure that the Uneako family always has access to improved and diverse range of products. And all its products have elements which encourage the user to take easy but conscious steps to lead a more earth-friendly life.

Polu, the polar bear, Uneako's brand mascot, symbolises the urgency for the change to a sustainable lifestyle. For if our lifestyle remains the same, Polu's family would be the first to disappear forever due to climate change. And the street children? Well, very soon, their families would be hit the hardest.

In a world rapidly going downhill, we hope you join the Uneako family to share sustainable happiness and create a bright new future— for all life on earth.

FACTS

That
mission.

World Produce about 300 Million tonnes of Plastic waste every year, That's nearly equivalent to the weight of the entire human population. 50% of this plastic is of single used Plastic- Utilised for just a few Moments, but on the planet for atleast several hundreds years. 50% of the total plastic waste is of Packaging waste.

79% of the total plastic waste generated has accumulated in landfills. It is estimated that 1.6 billion tonnes of (CO2) equivalent greenhouse gas emissions were generated from solid waste treatment and disposal in 2016, or 5 percent of global emissions.

Scientists have identified 200 areas declared as 'dead zones' where no life organisms can now grow. 73% of beach litter worldwide is plastic. More Than 8 million tons of plastic is dumped into our oceans every year.

There are believed to be 46,000 pieces of plastic in every square mile of ocean. The average person eats 70,000 microplastics each year indirectly.

Nearly 4 billion trees worldwide are cut down each year for paper, representing about 35 percent of all harvested trees.

SUSTAINABLE MATERIALS

- JUTE
Jute is eco-friendly and sustainable because it needs little to no intervention to grow and replenish. We can grow and harvest jute on the same area of land, as jute actually increases soil fertility for future crops.
- CORK
Besides being waterproof, buoyant, elastic, fire resistant & unique in its appearance, it is a naturally harvested material, mainly originating in the cork oak forests. It gets more interesting: each time the cork is harvested, the tree absorbs more CO2 to aid in the bark regeneration process. This means regularly harvested cork trees store 3-5 times more CO2 than those left unharvested.
- KRAFT PAPER
Brown Kraft paper is used in an unbleached brown form to avoid contamination of the environment due to bleaching chemicals. Kraft paper is stronger, due to its reduced lignin content and high sulfur ratio.
- SEED PAPER
Handmade Seed paper is a zero-waste solution for products that require traditional paper. Made with post-consumer materials embedded with seeds, this biodegradable paper doesn't leave any waste behind and will grow into something that will actually have a positive impact on the environment.
- BAMBOO
Bamboo forests can be grown in a few years. The plants reduce upto 35% carbon dioxide in the atmosphere and produce more oxygen. Bamboo plants have strong roots in the ground which makes the soil more stable.
- COCONUT HUSK
Coconut husk is a good alternative to wood and helps to prevent deforestation. During production, glue & chemical agents do not need to be added. Furthermore, the production is CO2 neutral.
- COTTON
100% Natural Cotton fabric Organic production systems replenish and maintain soil fertility, reduce the use of toxic and persistent pesticides and fertilizers, and build biologically diverse agriculture, making natural cottons an eco friendly fabric.
- BAGGASE
Baggase and Rice husk ash absorb silica from the soil, their husks contain up to 20% of the mineral. According to a recent article, published in Physical Sciences Reviews, rice husk ash is considered to be one of the most promising and environmentally friendly sources for the production of silicon-based materials.

COMMUNITIES

“There is no power of change grater than a community discovering what it cares about.”

Sustainable happiness, is not only limited to creating products with sustainable materials but also creating opportunities for marginalised sections of communities to contribute towards this mission.

Marginalised communities, sometimes also called social exclusion – refers to the relegation to the fringes of society due to a lack of access to rights, resources, and opportunities.

We at Uneako have created a platform where we are responsible for creating livelihoods to these marginalised communities.

We work closely with these communities to create a bigger impact of what sustainability actually means. Our sustainable goals are holistic ie, sustainable manufacture, sustainable products and sustainable economy.

With every product we initiate to design we are in constant touch with social groups to be able to utilise their skills and capabilities to generate an income for them via creating our products.

Various marginalised communities have participated with us for as long we have started this journey I the creation of out goods.

These communities include:

1. VILLAGE WOMEN
2. SPECIALLY ABLED
3. JAIL INMATES
4. SEX WORKERS
5. TRANSGENDERS
